GENERAL NEWS.

A Forecast of the Coming Week in Congress.

THE DEBT OF THE PACIFIC ROADS

The Rate War Continues—Gladstone's Cabinet About To Go to Pieces—Bismarck Denounces the Socialist Leaders

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Business of the senate is substantially in the same condition as at the beginning of last week, with the difference that a vote upon the bill to increase the army is expected or hoped for to-morrow or Tuesday. The bill to admit the territory of Washington will next be disposed of, to be succeeded by the interstate commerce bill and that by the bankruptcy bill. It is probable that the Indian appropriation bill and possibly the pension appropriation bill will be reported from the committee on appropriations before the end of the week. Only these two of the annual appropriation bills have reached the senate, a fact which is commented on. At the corresponding date of the preceding long session five of the annual appropriation bills had passed the house, two had passed the senate ... and one had been sent to the president.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—It is said that Senator ... is doing all he can to defeat the confirmation of the nomination of John S. Hager as collector of the port of San Francisco. It is impossible to learn the nature of the charges ... will prefer against Hager. Senator Stanford ... also shown a disposition to antagonize any of the California appointments. It is doubtful whether ... can succeed in defeating Hager without the assistance of Stanford, and it is reasonably certain that that assistance will be wanting.

MANNING CONTINUES TO IMPROVE.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Secretary Manning continues to improve rapidly. He is very much better to-night and it is hoped he will be able to sit up within a few days.

Secretary Lamar and Attorney General Garland have about entirely recovered and are now able to transact department business at their homes, but their physicians will not permit them to go out while the present inclement weather continues.

KNIGHTS ... AT WORK.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The Knights of Labor are determined not to allow the resolution to sleep that was introduced in the house by Curtin of Pennsylvania, which provides for investigation of the present labor troubles by a congressional committee. The resolution will probably be brought forward immediately. The Knights of Labor are already picking out whom they want the speaker to appoint on the committee.

THE GREAT STRIKE.

More Trouble Feared at Fort Worth To-day.

TROOPS POURING INTO THE CITY

The Knights of Labor Issue Another Statement to the Public—Discovery of a Conspiracy at St. Louis—Etc.

FORT WORTH, TEXAS, April 4.—Six companies of the Fourth regiment have arrived here and two companies of the First are also here. Brigadier General Roberts is in command. The dead body of Frank Pierce, a striker, was found and has just been brought into town. Two others ... have been located. Trouble is looked for in the morning. Strikers are coming in from all directions. A train sent south reached Alvarado, thirty miles distant, in safety.

Attorney General Templeton, who is here with Adjutant General King, says that since the authority of the state has been invoked it will be carried out, and trains must move, if it takes the whole military of the state to do it. No attempt will be made to take out trains until to-morrow.

A proclamation has been issued closing all saloons and drinking houses of every description until 6 o'clock Wednesday night.

MILITIA POURING IN.

Militia from Dallas, composed of two companies of the Dallas Light Guards, twenty-four strong, and the Hibernian rifles, twelve strong, arrived here on a special train about 10 o'clock this morning and quartered in the Union depot. A few hours later a special train from Harrold brought the Rangers, twelve strong, and the south bound Missouri Pacific train brought the Greys ... rifles, twenty-five strong. On the afternoon train came the Decatur rifles, thirty-two strong, the Austin Greys, twenty-three strong, the Texas rifles, thirty-five strong, the Cleburne Light Guards, twenty-five strong and the Alvarado Guards, thirty-two strong. At 5 o'clock a special west bound Texas & Pacific train brought the Crawford battery, under Capt. Houston, twelve strong. The troops here now number ... men. Adjt. Gen. King, Brig. Gen. A. S. R. ..., Attorney Gen. Templeton, Inspector Gen. ... Smith and Col. W. ... are on the ground. The railroad yards are lined with soldiers and no one dares to venture on railroad property.

District Judge Peckham was called into consultation with the railroad officials this morning, the result being that at about 12 o'clock a freight train was sent south under guard of the Greyson rifles and a special force of fifteen citizens. Another train was at once made up and sent north, also under guard, and at 2 o'clock a third train pulled out going south.

A WARNING.

This morning the following notice was found placarded at the postoffice and other prominent places in the neighborhood of the freight depot: "Please do not sacrifice your lives by being shoved out on trains by government officers or Gould's ... officers. Last call. Fair warning." The notice was written in pencil.

A few arrests were made to-day for violating the injunction against the strikers last Friday.

Strikers are gathering here from other points. A number from Bonham are known to have arrived this morning and others are said to be coming in from other towns in the state. Last night eighteen men armed with Winchesters camped near the Texas & Pacific track a short distance east of town.

It is thought most of the strikers' force is outside of town and that an attack will be made on some central point just as the attack of Saturday was made. Adjt. Gen. King anticipates some movement of this kind but will say nothing definite. The mere fact that heavy artillery is being brought shows that the authorities fear the worst.

THE SITUATION AT ST. LOUIS

Another Statement to the Public—A Conspiracy Against Knights of Labor

ST. LOUIS, April 4.—Mr. Hayes, third member of the general executive committee of the Knights of Labor, arrived here to-night, giving the committee a quorum. Shortly after Mr. Hayes arrived the general committee went into secret session with the local committees and gave the situation very full and exhaustive discussion, weighing all the facts and giving all the points careful consideration. The meeting lasted until after midnight, when the following was given out in the form of a statement to the public:

At the conference held in New York with Gould and his associates and the general executive board the following was mutually agreed upon: That the officials were willing to meet a committee of their employes, without discrimination, who were actually in the employ of the road at the time such committee was appointed, to adjust with them any grievance they may have. The executive board, upon arriving in St. Louis, have been informed that Mr. Hoxie has refused to comply with the agreement as all the parties of the conference understood them. A committee waited upon him to ascertain his intentions of carrying out the agreement, and received the following reply: That only ... per cent of the former force would be re-employed; that he would consider personal applications only, and use his own pleasure in acting upon them without the dictation of any society. This being in direct violation of the agreement the general board believe that the refusal is for the purpose of stock jobbing, using the organization as well to further their ends. We therefore recall the order given the men to return to work, the road having made it impossible to fulfill the same. The matter now stands as it did before the order to resume was issued, in the hands of those districts interested, and the general board will render all the assistance possible to carry out the demand of the men for justice.

We anticipate no especial demonstrations to-morrow, said Mr. Turner to a reporter, and no particular change in the aspect of affairs. Things are simply as they were before.

CONSPIRACY AGAINST KNIGHTS OF LABOR.

Frank McKeighan, a telegraph operator, was arrested to-day and has made a confession which will create a sensation here. He says that recently he entered into an arrangement with Thomas Furlong, chief of the Gould system secret service, whereby Martin Irons, A. ... Coughlan and other prominent leaders of the Knights of Labor were to be arrested. A room was engaged in the third story of the building at 2 Market street, past the window of which ran a private telegraph wire on which H. M. Hoxie, first vice president of the Missouri Pacific railway, was in almost constant communication with Gould. McKeighan engaged another operator named Nicholls to assist him, and the two men soon tapped the wire and had an instrument at work. The arrangement was to have Irons, Coughlin and others in the room intercepting messages between Hoxie and Gould, when the police would make a descent on the place and capture the whole outfit. The signal for the descent was to be a lamp placed in one of the windows. Friday night detectives and a squad of police were ready, and ... lamp appeared ... at the windows on the second floor. A rush was made for the room, but a poor woman engaged in running a sewing machine was the only person there. The officers then learned that they had gone to the wrong room, and at ... the third floor when McKeighan was found ... Furlong heard of the matter and McKeighan's arrest followed.

THE DEAD AND WOUNDED.

The wounded officers, Snead and Fulford, are still alive. The funeral of Dick Townsend, the officer who was killed in the fight, occurred to-day and was largely attended. It is learned definitely to-night that Frank Pierce is dead.

No one is allowed to stand on the streets. The officers are in citizens' dress and nearly every man ... not known as a striker has ... permit to carry concealed weapons.

Suggestions to Critics

Chicago News.

That was a very expressive adjective used by the local critic who referred to Mr. Sydney Woollett's "rich, velvety voice," and we thank him for it. A sufficient acquaintance with the dry goods business would enable the critic to locate several well known voices. There is the red flannel voice so often heard in the county commissioner's room, and the faded brown plush voice of the council chamber, to say nothing of the ingrain-carpet voice that makes itself heard and felt at the ward primaries. Our friend the critic has pointed out a ... of rare and appropriate adjectives.

WHICH IS THE LAW?

PORTLAND, April 3, 1886.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The question whether any portion of the law in regard to elections passed by the legislature of 18.. at the regular session, and amended at the special session, is an important one. While probably the election will be valid, held under either law, the main idea being to obtain the will of the people, still we ... desire to follow the act which is the law, if we can ascertain it. There are also some modifications in the act of 188. which are of value in promoting purity of elections which ought to be observed.

The recent decision of the supreme court declaring that portion of the law relating to registration unconstitutional contains no word concerning the balance of the law. Neither the opinion of the court nor the dissenting opinion of Judge Thayer alludes to any question which can throw light on the question. What, then, is the law?

It is a doctrine with which all lawyers are familiar that when one part of a law is declared unconstitutional, if there are other portions which are not amenable to the same objections, such portions will stand unaffected by those portions which have been declared unconstitutional. Says Mr. Cooley in his work on Constitutional Limitations, page ...: "If when the unconstitutional portion is stricken out that which remains is complete in itself and capable of being executed in accordance with the apparent legislative intent, wholly independent of that which was rejected, it must be sustained. * * * If a statute attempts to accomplish two or more objects, and is void as to one, it may still be in every respect complete and valid as to the other."

The act in question is entitled "An act to provide for the registration of voters, regulating the manner of conducting elections, providing for the prevention and punishment of frauds affecting the elective franchise, and repealing title ... of chapter ... of the miscellaneous laws of Oregon." This is certainly a broad enough title to cover all that the act attempts to do. The act, after setting out what shall be done with reference to registration, proceeds specifically to point out the manner of conducting elections and details with minuteness all that is required to be done. You may expunge every word that refers to registration and you will still have left all that is necessary to constitute a complete and efficient election law.

It is provided in section ... of the act that the county court shall at the January term appoint three persons who shall serve as judges of registration and two persons who shall serve as clerks of registration and who shall also be judges and clerks of election. Strike out the words which refer to registration and where is there anything lacking toward a valid power to appoint judges and clerks of election at the January term? Every county court in the state has made these appointments. Where can there be any valid objection raised against these appointments holding good for the June election. The full power is given, the appointments have been made, and there can be no valid objection made to these men serving, because the power given is coupled with a power which the legislature had no right to give. The same reasons hold good with reference to the appointments. The portions of the act and the appointments which refer to the registration may be regarded as surplusage and entirely stricken out and you have left all that is necessary for either purpose.

The same section ... provides that the county court shall set off and establish election precincts within the county, and said court may set off and establish within said election precincts as many polling places as may be necessary or convenient. This is beyond all question a portion of the law which is complete in itself and which is capable of being executed in accordance with the apparent legislative intent, wholly independent of that portion which refers to registration, and therefore it will stand.

Going from this to section .. of the act we find that full provision is made for giving notice by the clerk of the election and the form of such notice is set forth. The sections following make provision for the service of the notice by the sheriff, the oaths of the judges and clerks, the time of the opening and closing of the polls, the kind of ballot to be used, how votes are to be challenged and the mode of procedure on such challenge. There is also in section .. an important provision which prohibits the espionage of voters, which is frequently resorted to by forbidding any person except the voter going there to deposit his ballot from approaching within 100 feet of the polls.

We thus see that the title is sufficient to cover the case, the language of the act is broad enough to stand independent of all that refers to the registration of voters. The act is complete when all that has any reference to registration is expunged, and therefore there can be no valid objection to it.

I understand from reliable authority that members of the supreme court declare that their decision covered, and was only meant to cover, the one single question—that of registration—and they so far as presented see no further objections to the law, though of course they have not considered the questions here discussed. M.

THE NEWS OF SATURDAY.

Following is an epitome of the news of Saturday printed in full in the SUNDAY OREGONIAN:

DOMESTIC DISPATCHES.

The house passed the labor arbitration bill by a vote of 19.. to 30.

Fire in the Planter's house at St. Louis caused the death of four servant girls who were smothered to death.

Over 1,000,000 ties have been ordered for shipment to the terminus of the California & Oregon railroad, where active construction is still going on.

On her last trip from San Francisco to Yaquina bay the steamer Yaquina ran down the schooner J. N. Congdon. The crew, consisting of two men, were rescued and carried to Yaquina.

Democratic members of the ways and means committee express the opinion, based upon departmental estimates, that the new tariff bill contemplates a reduction of between twenty-two and twenty-four millions in the revenue of the government. A loss of three millions is expected as a result of placing wool on the free list, of eleven millions on woolen products and of five millions on sugar.

The United States grand jury at San Francisco has found indictments against eight prominent citizens of California for subornation of perjury in the case of fraudulent entries of redwood timberland in Humboldt county. The names of three are Joseph Russ, David Evans and Charles H. King, who collectively represent five millions in capital. The names of the other five are not yet known, but they are said to be all wealthy men.

At Fort Worth, Texas, a freight train was sent out on the Missouri Pacific road under protection of armed officers. The track was thronged with strikers, but no attempt at interference was made until the crossing of the Fort Worth & New Orleans railway was reached outside the city limits. There a stop was made as usual, and it was found that the switch had been thrown open by strikers. Five men were lying partly concealed in the weeds near the track, and the officers ordered them to throw up their hands. The command was obeyed, but as the hands came up they brought Winchester rifles. The officers were armed only with revolvers. Both sides opened fire almost simultaneously, there being not more than two seconds between the time the first and second shots were fired. After the first fire the posse advanced and continued firing. The strikers retreated behind ... piles of ties, which formed a most excellent breastwork, and from the security of which they poured a murderous fire into the posse. Three of the officers were fatally wounded, one of them dying in the afternoon. Only one of the strikers was wounded. ROGUE RIVER MINES.

Special Correspondence from the Southern Quartz Field.

Brief History of a Former Quartz Excitement—Location of the Veins—The Fowler, Gold Hill and Other Celebrated Mines.

JACKSONVILLE, April 2.

Quartz mining in the Rogue river country is not a new thing, the first claims having been worked as long ago as 1860, but last fall a revival of interest took place and it looks at present as if that quiet agricultural region was likely to become an important mining district. The veins thus far prospected mostly lie in the range of hills which separates Applegate creek from Bear (Stuart) creek and Rogue river. The hills are perhaps 2,000 feet high and a number of brooks arise among them and flow into the streams named. The more important tributaries are Mill, Wagner, Jackson, Kane and Foot creeks on the north slope and Sterling and Jackass creeks on the south. People familiar with the history of that country will remember that it was upon these streams that the most of the placer mining of former days was done, and so will not be surprised to hear that gold bearing quartz lodes exist near their head waters.

GENERAL APPEARANCE OF THE DISTRICT.

An old prospector will be struck with the similarity of the country to the mining regions of Central and Northern California. He will notice the same clay slates, well known as auriferous there, are the porphyries, schists, serpentines, limestones, granites and all the other formations about which the quartz men are so fond of mystifying themselves; there are "sulphurets" of the usual description and finally, best of all, gold of the well known complexion. It is like a chunk of Amador or Nevada county dropped down north of the forty-second parallel, but miraculously and singularly free from the banging of stamp mills, and the stench of sulphuret works. It is like a mining country without its business and bustle and noise. But time may change all that and cause the Rogue River country (in the customary slang of mining reporters) to take its place as a great bullion producer.

PROSPECTING VERY ACTIVE.

Prospecting is now going on with ardor all over Jackson and Josephine counties, or at least in such localities as certain mineral veins. The greatest attention is concentrated on the hills between Applegate and Rogue River valley, but the country north of the river and west of Evans's creek is also being attended to as far west as Galice creek. There is also a great deal of quartz in the mountainous region drained by Illinois river, particularly on Althouse creek. South of the Applegate and near the California line some developments have been made, and the most productive mine in Oregon, the Fowler, or Steamboat lead, was worked there in 1860 and thereabouts.

FORMER DISCOVERIES.

The first quartz discoveries were made in 1850, when the Hicks vein on the left hand fork of Jackson creek were opened. It yielded about $2000, which was contained in a very small space. Men instantly set about prospecting for quartz mines, and in a short time made some dozen or more rich finds. The first was the famous lead found by Emigrant Graham on Gold Hill, which stands upon the southern bank of Rogue river, near the railroad crossing and about a dozen miles from Jacksonville. The greater part of the gold was found upon the surface of the hill near the summit, the vein having been broken and weathered down and exposing an enormous pocket from which over $100,000 was taken. The total product was $140,000, including what was taken from a mineralized chute adjoining the pocket. Part of the quartz went through an arastra and part was worked in the first stamp mill ever erected in Oregon. Henry Klippel, still living in Jacksonville, with two partners, built this mill but lost money on the venture. The principal owners of the lead were Henry Klippel, Col. John Ross and Thomas Chavner. Active operations lasted but a few months, when the rich rock was exhausted, and since then but little has been done, although the owners retain possession of the mine and keep up their joint stock organization. Mr. Klippel is president.

FURTHER DETAILS.

There were a number of discoveries made in the vicinity of Gold Hill, the Blackwell and Swinden ledges being the principal. On Foot's creek a number of claims were opened, and the Jewett mine, not far from Grant's Pass, but on the south side of the river, was located. The principal prospecting, however, was done on the headwaters of Jackson creek, especially on the right hand fork. The Holman ledge on Shively gulch, about three miles from Jacksonville, was worked at that time, and the Davenport claim near by revealed a rich pocket. From the Johnson and Elder claim fifty ounces of gold is said to have been taken in one day. The Bowden lead also yielded well and was worked to a depth of eighty feet, the greatest achieved in any vein in Jackson county, excepting a prospecting shaft in the Gold Hill lead, which I am told, penetrates to a depth of 140 feet. To the experienced it is not necessary to say that this is not mining; it is only scratching. Another fine mine was found on Carberry fork of Steamboat creek in 1860, the Fowler, from which several men made their fortunes. This claim produced more gold bearing rock than the others, and its yield was the greatest of all. The rock worked by the arastra process yielded as high as $2500 per ton—a yield far beyond that of any milling vein elsewhere reported. The theory that this was strictly a pocket vein is disproved by the amount of gold bearing rock which must have been several hundred tons, whereas true pocket veins are not found to contain more than a very few tons of very rich rock, this small deposit being surrounded with a limited belt of rock which gets poorer as it recedes from the central pocket, until in a few feet it becomes entirely barren. I have prepared this imperfect table of the gross yield of Jackson county quartz mines, mainly from oral evidence. It is doubtless very inaccurate in most respects:

Fowler mine	$ 15,000
Gold Hill mine	150,0 0
Jewett mine	40,000
Blackwell mine	10,000
Davenport mine	8,000
Holman mine	10,000
Hicks mine	2,000
Bowden mine	No fig's
Johnson Elder mine	No fig's
M... & Co	No fig's
Swinden mine	No fig's
Cupps & Wood	No fig's

LONG PERIOD OF INACTIVITY.

I have estimated that the total product of the above claims, together with perhaps a dozen others less noted, has been about $ ..,000, of which all save a few thousand was taken out in 18.0 and the two following years. There has been nothing of importance done on the ledges since until last winter, when work was resumed on several of them after a long spell of twenty-five years. I must, however, except the Jewett ledge, on which work was done in 18.. or thereabouts, which resulted in developing a large body of sulphuretted ores, requiring concentration and roasting. There have been a few minor "finds" in the interim, these being pockets which were blundered upon. About 1865 a so-called silver deposit was discovered near Willow Springs and occasioned some excitement, but proved unfounded.

MORE ANON.

I set out with the intention of giving a little of the history of the quartz discoveries in Jackson county, wishing for the sake of clearness to divide the story into an account of what has been done, what is being done and what may be done, but in order to avoid an unwieldy length, I will close for the present, having touched only the first consideration and that but very imperfectly. I will endeavor to complete the subject in a day or two. H. O. I.

Just the Reason Why.

Eugene Guard.

THE OREGONIAN charges more for its advertising space than does this paper, and the reason is very simple. It has more subscribers, consequently is more read and therefore more valuable. It is on the same principle that the merchant charges nearly ten times more for ten pounds than for one pound of sugar. All this may be wrong, but we don't think so.

Rumor in the Senate.

PORTLAND, MONDAY APRIL 5, 1886.

A NEW TARIFF BILL.

The committee of ways and means of the house of representatives is at work on a new tariff bill. From the course it is taking the fact is apparent that the result will not be so much a revision of the tariff as a reconstruction of political issues for the elections of 1886 and 1888. Already the committee has added coal, salt, lumber, fish, hemp, flax and wool to the free list, and no doubt will make considerable reductions on metals, while the duty on sugar, which ought to be abolished altogether, is to be reduced only 10 per cent. This bill will give rise to spirited and perhaps acrimonious debate. But it cannot possibly become a law. It is not probable that it will even pass the house, and certainly it will not pass the senate, so numerous are the great interests assailed by it.

Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia will make a fierce assault upon the proposition to put coal on the free list; and in this they will have the active sympathy and support of many other parts and sections of the country. Our neighbor, Washington territory, is deeply interested in this item; and so, though to less extent, is a portion of our own state. New York and Michigan will protest with energy and force against putting salt on the free list; all the lumber districts of our northern border will enter a like protest as to lumber; Kentucky will object to the admission of hemp free of duty, and all the flax-producing districts of the whole country will enter a similar protest as to flax. From one end of the country to the other, every wool-producing state, territory, district, county and township, will thunder in the ears of congress a veto upon the proposition to make wool free. Should the house pass the bill the consequence pretty certainly would be the election of a republican house next fall. The great wool industry itself could and probably would bring about that result. All the protected interests and industries of the country would be arrayed quite solidly on one and the same side; and though well-known protector democrats could not be beaten in districts where there are large democratic majorities, the democratic candidates generally would be overwhelmed in all the close districts, and the eye one would extend even to the South, where the policy of protection is now taking stronger root, as it never did before.

Though there are protection democrats, and free-trade or low tariff republicans, yet the bulk of protectionists are in the republican party and the mass of free traders or low tariff men are in the democratic party. Of about 182 democrats in the house, something like forty are protectionists of the extreme type, while of the 140 republicans of that body nearly as many would consent to considerable reductions or modifications of the tariff, if their own views were not antagonized as to particular interests. But most, even of this class of republicans will be wary about committing themselves to any reductions that may be proposed, because they hope and expect to see this become the main issue, with an advantage to their party in the next presidential election. Whatever the house may do with this new bill, it is not to be supposed, however, that the senate will pass it. Free wool alone would kill the bill in that body, and thousands of democrats in the wool-growing states (including Oregon) would applaud.

The South, once the stronghold of free trade or low tariff, has been coming round since the war to advocacy of protection. Special industries, which the people believe are fostered by high tariff, are obtaining foothold there; and accordingly, protests against tariff reduction, made by democrats in Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee, are as loud and earnest as those made by democrats in Pennsylvania, Connecticut and New Jersey,—though of course not so general. Louisiana has a special industry—sugar—to protect, and will object even to the trifling reduction of ten per cent. proposed by the committee; though in fact sugar ought to be put on the free list, since Louisiana's whole product is but 135,000 tons, while we import 1,000,000 tons a year, upon which duties amounting to nearly $50,000,000 are taxed, just for the sake of giving the Louisiana planters a profit. But Louisiana's senators and representatives make common cause with those who object to free coal, free salt, and free wool; and the great iron industry in all its branches, "stands in" upon instinct, on the same side.

So great a body of free traders and low tariff men is there in the democratic party, that it is quite impossible for that party to let the tariff alone. It must "tinker" at it; and yet this necessity is full of peril to it as a party. Republicans, in the manner of opposition parties is, though many of them know and admit that the tariff ought to undergo revision, and in many particulars reduction, will not help directly and in good faith to do these things, but will obstruct democratic efforts, and both contribute to and take advantage of democratic mistakes. Blaine made his great effort two years ago on protection, and the republican party will certainly adhere to this same policy for the struggle of 1888, playing meantime for every possible advantage of position,—and very possibly missing it again.

TWO KINDS OF PROHIBITION.

A well-known prohibitionist in a private note to the editor says: "I read your oleomargarine prohibition article yesterday, and I wondered why you could not see the liquor-selling prohibition with the same spectacles. I should like to work the paralleling business on this for you." Now the proposition to prohibit the sale of bogus butter is one thing and the proposition to prohibit the sale of liquors is quite another. There is this essential difference, that nobody in the community wants bogus butter or will buy it if they know what it really is, while great numbers, well knowing what liquors are and their effect, want them and will have them. We had occasion to say only yesterday, in speaking of the failure at Walla Walla to convict violators of the Sunday law in cases where the law was clear and the proof direct, abundant and unimpeachable that there is no way of enforcing laws against the judgment of the community, and that it was useless for the law to attempt to make that a crime which the popular judgment holds to be no crime. THE OREGONIAN has protested against prohibition upon the consideration of practicability. It does not believe that a prohibitory law could be made effective and it fears that the effect of such a law would be the loss to the state and city governments of a considerable revenue and the loss of such control of the liquor traffic as we have under the license law. We fear that a prohibitory law would be openly violated with impunity and that under such a system the evils of the liquor traffic would be promoted. The ground for this belief is the well known impossibility of enforcing such laws as we have already, notably the Sunday law and the prohibition against selling to minors. If you cannot enforce these regulations, especially appealing as they do to the reverent and humane sentiments of the community, certainly you cannot enforce a severer law. So much for the practical aspects of liquor prohibition, rendered very different from the aspects of bogus butter prohibition, by the almost universal tendency among men to buy and consume liquors in their various forms. In common with the whole moral world, we are sorry that the mass of men will not listen to good counsel, nor even obey the laws which would save them from the curse of strong liquors; but this does not alter the fact that men want to drink, will drink, and consider it nobody's business but their own if they do drink. It is waste of time, in the situation of the prohibition question of this state, to discuss any other aspect of the case but the paramount one of practicability.

If the proposition were not to prohibit the manufacture and sale of liquors, but to prohibit the sale of adulterated liquors under the pretense that they are pure, then there would be some prospect of making headway. No man wants to drink bad liquors, and the proposition above stated would be supported generally. It would be an important step toward temperance reform, for it is a well known fact that half of the evil consequences of drinking proceed from the poisons used in the adulterations of liquors. A law requiring that all liquids on sale be labeled distinctly as to their real character, would be rational and just, would be approved by the judgment and sentiment of the whole community and, with a proper system of inspection and a reasonable scheme of punishments, could be enforced. The principle of such a law would be in exact conformity with the principle of the bogus butter law of this state and its practical aspects would be precisely the same. We see the law against bogus butter enforced strictly, and there is a lesson in the example.

We are at loss to know how our correspondent whose note is quoted above would put THE OREGONIAN to disadvantage by comparison of its statements concerning prohibition of liquors and prohibition of bogus butter. The questions are so different in their practical aspects that they have, naturally, been treated in different ways, but never, certainly, in either case, in a way at variance with the principles which lie in common back of both. As propositions, without going into considerations of practicability, expediency, etc., the two are similar. And now what has been said about the one, as intimated by our correspondent, that will not tally with our position on the other? We said, speaking of the demand now made in congress for "absolute prohibition of the manufacture and sale of imitation butter," that the "dairymen of the country were going too far;" that "all that is reasonable is to prohibit deception in its sale—that is, its sale under the pretense that it is genuine butter;" that "there could be no more reason or justice in prohibiting its manufacture or sale, under its true name, than in the manufacture or sale of lard as such;" that "there would be no more justice in prohibiting it than in prohibiting the sale of paper napkins because their use injured the linen market;" that "a prohibitory law would violate the rights of the manufacturer and the privileges of such persons, few in number, who may prefer cheap oleomargarine to dearer butter;" and finally that "the effort now being made to secure a national prohibitory law is upon a wrong principle and it ought to fail." Is there any presentation of principles here, which, if applied to liquor prohibition, would lead to a different position from that held by THE OREGONIAN through all this long prohibition discussion? We think not. In talking about the bogus butter question we have simply gotten into a phase of the general question of prohibition, not deemed necessary to be considered at this time in connection with the liquor question.

FOLLY AND MADNESS.

The culmination of the great strike in bloodshed at Fort Worth is the logical and, indeed, the inevitable, result of trespass by the strikers upon the rights of others. It will serve once more to mark definitely the limit of strikers' rights—a limit which they must not overpass. It is but a narrow bound, but still perfectly definable. Men who are dissatisfied with the conditions of their employment may abandon it singly or in a body. They may make any demands they choose, and refuse to work unless their demands are complied with. But they have no right to use force to prevent those whose service they have abandoned from going on with their business; no right to prevent other workmen from taking their places, unless they can do it by methods merely persuasive. In this case they have seized the yards of the railway companies; have prevented them by force from sending out trains, and have used violence, first against the new employes, and then against the officers of the law. The step in such cases from a legal and rightful position to the status of criminality is but a short one, and by taking that step men place themselves in a position from which they must be forced to recede at any cost of life. The dividing line between rights on the two sides in cases like this is a necessary one, and must, therefore, always be maintained. Men ought to know without lessons like this that the law cannot permit them to obstruct by force a business which they have abandoned, in order to compel the proprietors to accede to their terms, or for any purpose whatever. Men may stand resolutely on their own rights, but cannot be permitted to assail the rights of others. The consequence of this lawless action at Fort Worth will be to complete the victory of the railways over the strikers. Men are mad when, in contending against employers, they go so far as to bring also against them the whole body of the people and the whole power of the state.

A CALL FOR INFORMATION.

The Rural Spirit of Friday contained the following paragraph:

For some time the Oregon dairy commissioner has suspicioned that much of the California butter being sold in this market was a fraud. Believing this, samples have been analyzed which proves that the so-called butter is an imitation. The parties selling it will be arrested the fore part of the coming week.

Attention has been called to this note by several importing provision merchants of this city, who suggest that the dairy commissioner be asked to state through THE OREGONIAN all the facts connected with his discovery of fraud. As the matter rests on the statement quoted above, the importers who actually deal in bogus butter are shielded by a general statement, while suspicion attaches to all importers of butter. A desire to be prudent or kind, or both, has caused the editor of the Spirit, who is also state dairy commissioner, to involve many innocent persons in general discredit and to injure greatly a legitimate branch of business. Having stated so much, the demand that the commissioner speak out and name the guilty parties is entirely reasonable. It is not merchants alone who have an interest in this matter. The public, upon whom oleomargarine is imposed, or likely to be imposed, would like to know who it is who seeks profit by making it the victim of fraud.

NATIVE SONS OF OREGON.

At 8 o'clock to-night, at the council chamber in this city, there will be a meeting of native-born Oregonians, to consider the proposition to organize a permanent society. It has occurred to many that such an organization would serve a useful purpose by bringing Oregon-born men, who are now legion, into acquaintance with each other and in a position where their united voice may be expressed, when occasion requires, upon matters affecting the welfare of the state. This alone is a sufficient motive for organization, but there are other purposes not less important. The movement is by no means a Portland affair, but is intended to take in the whole state. Many young men living at interior points have signified their wish to be "counted in," and it is thought that a society with a large and representative membership can easily be organized. In California there is a large organization of "native sons," in which the whole state takes pride. The capacity of a country to produce men is, after all, its highest capacity. Oregon, we are proud to say, need not be ashamed of her achievement in this respect, and we are glad to see her sons eager to honor her.

The bill for admission of Washington territory is still before the senate, and will be put upon its passage some time during the coming week. It may get through the senate, but we have information that its chances in the house are slender. The recent Chinese outrages have given the enemies of the measure a handle which they have not failed to use effectually.

It is said that William L. Scott of Erie, Pa., is to be Manning's successor in the treasury. Mr. Scott now represents the Erie district in congress. He is worth ten million dollars, and contributed $50,000 to the Cleveland campaign fund. Of course he is said to be "sound" on financial questions. He has now a bill before congress to stop the coinage of silver.

Of the 134 nays in the house, by which the Blair education bill was defeated, 71 were democrats and 63 were republicans. Of the 115 votes cast for the bill, 82 were democrats and 33 were republicans. Southern democrats were largely against the bill—a fact that does them credit.

LINN COUNTY INSTITUTE.

FOURTH DAY—MORNING SESSION.

Institute called to order by the president. On motion Prof. W. S. Walker, Prof. J. L. ... and Prof. Lonsway were appointed a committee on resolutions.

J. F. Stubblefield presented the subject of penmanship, and his specimens upon the black-board and full explanations on the same, showed that he fully understood that art. Upon the question of using Spencerian copy books, it was thought best policy not to do it unless the teacher himself was unable to write.

Prof. Walker spoke upon map drawing, and exhibited some very good specimens from pupils of his school, at Brownsville.

Miss Kirkpatrick explained very clearly her method of teaching composition and writing in primary classes.

Prof. W. T. Van Scoy read a very interesting paper, drawn from every teacher's experience, upon the first day's teaching in a school.

Prof. Walker made a number of very interesting remarks upon "Hygiene and Physiology," using drawings loaned by the faculty of the Albany college. Adjourned.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

One of the most interesting explanations of any subject during the institute was Prof. Campbell's remarks upon "Grammar," and an exposition upon the verb to be.

Prof. Lonsway, of Scio, presented the subject of Truth, Honesty, Benevolence, etc. in Schools. He gave many new ideas upon the subject, and drew out many valuable hints, which were improved by all.

Miss Mary Irvine read an excellent paper upon Study of Words.

Prof. J. L. Gilbert presented the subject of the State's Right to Educate, making many good points in the affirmative.

The following resolution was received from the C. T. U., and on motion was adopted:

WHEREAS, The legislature of the state of Oregon has enacted a law requiring instruction to be given in our public schools showing the effects of narcotics and alcoholic stimulants upon the human system; and

WHEREAS, The use of tobacco, opium or alcohol injures the perceptive faculties, blunts the intellect and impairs the moral discernment, thus retarding school work; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, as teachers and educators of this institute, will use our influence to discourage the use of narcotics and intoxicants, both by precept and example; and further, that we will introduce into our several schools and carefully teach the course adopted by the state board, showing the effect of narcotic and alcoholic stimulants upon the human system, the same as any other branch now taught.

EVENING SESSION.

In the evening a literary entertainment was given for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the institute. The dress circle of the opera house was crowded to its utmost capacity, and a most splendid and interesting exhibition was given. The programme consisted of songs, recitations, choruses, etc., and each performer rendered his part well. The committee on resolutions made a lengthy report, which was adopted, after which the institute adjourned.

THE STAGE.

THE CASINO.—To-night Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance" will be given in this city for the first time by the Thompson opera company, with the following cast: ...

The management promise that the opera will be produced with the entire original business, as directed by the authors, and those who have seen Mr. MacCollin's excellent work as stage manager in the former operas this season will know what to expect in the way of pleasure received through the medium of the eye. The male choruses, especially, ought to be very fine. "The Pirates" will run for five nights only, the company going to Astoria for Thursday and Friday of this week.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

WILL ADMINISTER THE LAW IMPARTIALLY.—Agent E Coffey of the Umatilla Indian reservation was interviewed by an OREGONIAN reporter concerning the complaint made by Joseph Depew in regard to being obliged to send his children twenty miles to the reservation school when the Centerville school was only a few miles away. Agent Coffey states that he has no option in the matter. He is required to see that the children on the reservation attend the school ... [illegible] ... and that they are well nursed and cared for which ... not far off at the school than at home in most instances. There need be no fear ... Mr Coffey ... and impartial manner

INSANE PATIENTS SENT EAST.—Deputy Sheriff Eddy arrived ... yesterday having in charge two insane persons. One was Ah Fook, a Chinaman ... The ... after being placed inside of a straight jacket learned that it was not proper in Portland to assault county officials, so he subsided and from force of circumstances allowed himself to be locked up. The other man is named Benjamin Harvey. He has been in the asylum before and at one time farmed at Pilot Rock. He said he was born in North Carolina ... from Arkansas in 1871 and had two children living near Dayton—a boy aged 18 and a daughter ... of age. Harvey is 52 years old. He remarked that he was aware of the fact that his reason was gone ... that he was taken with spells and could not help himself. When told he was to be taken back to Salem he cried like a child. ... He was hopeful of eventual recovery. His last visit to the asylum he said was of three months duration

ADVERSE TO ... —Mah Jim, ... under life sentence for killing Sea Toy, goes to the penitentiary to day unless ... providence interferes or that his taking up be postponed for a day or two. His attorneys talked of an appeal but the probabilities now are that they have abandoned this notion, and will, if they do anything submit the evidence to the board of pardons and rely on executive clemency. Mah Jim has been in the state prison before, and when an OREGONIAN reporter saw him yesterday he was engaged in giving pointers as to prison life to young Dick Turpin Smallden, Blueskin Willie Daley and Claud Duval Evans. Jim informed Smallden and his pals that during his last visit he was employed in the kitchen and got plenty of beefsteak and a few beans but they were liable to have to do service in the four dry with plenty of beans and a very limited quantity of steak. Said Jim: "If you don't behave yourself they just the you ... up this way and give you a good flogging. Sabe? When you run away the guard he shoot you and then they ... you in the pot and cook you. Yes. I seen em. Sabe."

A DAY'S GOOD FISHING.—The party who left Saturday on the steam yacht Mikado for a trout-ing down the Columbia, returned yesterday and reported a pleasant and successful day's sport. Some idea of the speed of the craft may be had from the log, which is as follows: Left Portland 8 A M Saturday; passed St. Helens 10 05, Kalama 11 15, Mt Coffin ... Oak Point 1 15. Return left Oak Point 1 P M, passed Mt. Coffin ... Kalama 4 ..., arrived Portland 8 P M. Of eight in the party only five engaged in active operations against the freckled finnies, and they averaged 60 trout to the rod. Christie led the score with 120. Brown's came with 90. The three others distanced. Pleasure was added to the trip by Fritz who played the ... like a master.

ONLY TO SCARE HER.—Just before 11 o'clock last night Joseph Adler ... years of age, was arrested by ... at Hombers, ... Clyde house, Fourth and Morrison streets, for attempting to kill a woman known as Kittie Merrill. She grabbed the pistol and screamed for help, which soon came. Adler was locked up for the night. He is a barber and formerly kept a shop on First street between Oak and Pine. The weapon is a very large Smith & Wesson carrying a cartridge like a small rifle, and not such a pistol as a gentleman would want about him. He stated to an OREGONIAN reporter that he had no intention whatever to shoot the woman, and drew the weapon only to scare her.

DILIGENCE OF HONEY.—Thomas Brisel of this city who sent a very tasteful display of the product of his extensive apiary to the New Orleans exposition yesterday received from the commissioners a very handsome diploma ... display of honey in the comb. Mr Brisel is an enthusiast in the matter of bees and honey and at present has sixty hives. Last year he took half a gallon of strained honey from one of his hives on the 1st of March. This spring, he says, his bees have up to this date made only honey enough for their own consumption. Which goes to show that the shining hours which the busy bee doth improve have not been so numerous this season as they were last.

CAR LOAD OF SALMON EAST.—Tomorrow or Wednesday afternoon a car load of fresh salmon will leave this city for Buffalo New York, over the Northern Pacific consigned to James Port. Most of the shipment will arrive here from ... river points to-day. The salmon will be shipped in boxes containing about 300 pounds of fish and ice and will be placed in one of the Northern Pacific refrigerator cars having a capacity of 8,000 pounds. There will be about 14,000 pounds of salmon and 6000 pounds of ice. The car which is fitted with air brakes will go through attached to passenger trains

Opening exercises conducted by Mrs Cathin followed by Mrs H Brook on the "Training of Children." Mrs Murton, Mrs Sloane Smith, Dr Hunt, Dr Florence ... and Mrs ... choose, each have topics ... of interest. A cordial invitation is extended to all who are interested in the moral ... of the young

PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION.—Saturday in Justice Redmond's court John Katzdobler had an examination on a charge of arson in burning Swan ... barn near Milwaukie several weeks ago. The state was represented by John ... Caples and Deputy District Attorney Murphy. The ... endeavored to prove an alibi ... introduced witnesses to swear that he was at home at the time of the fire. Justice Redmond will render his decision to-day at 1 P M. The question of Katzdobler getting set free or held to the grand jury will then be determined.

NOT EXPECTED.—Henry ... from an item in yesterday's OREGONIAN ... the sudden death of George ... about the steamer ... DEATH.—The only child—a boy aged 15 months—of Capt Alex Malcolm one of the Columbia river bar pilots died in this city Saturday of brain fever. REMARKABLE MIND READING

One of the most remarkable exhibitions of spiritualistic so called and mind reading capability took place last evening at the New Market theatre on the occasion of the first appearance of Miss Anna Eva Fay the celebrated medium and Prof and Madame Steen the world famous mind readers. The first part of the performance consisted of manifestations by Miss Fay in which with hands and feet seemingly tied she makes various musical instruments utter forth sounds and gives other evidence of the presence of a force which it appears almost impossible to imagine. How she does it is hard to understand. With a committee of two disinterested gentlemen on the stage, who tied her hands and feet and who were sufficiently close to see if there was any change in her position and who declared after the manifestations that she was in the same position as before, it was, to say the least, very mysterious.

But by far the most remarkable part of the performance was the exhibition of mind reading by Madame Steen assisted by Prof Steen. Seven gentlemen selected at hap hazard from the audience were invited upon the stage and each was asked to write the day, year and month of his birth upon a slip of paper and to place the same in an envelope without having previously shown it to anyone. Having done so all the slips were given to one of the seven gentlemen and at the question from the professor Madame Steen in each case gave the correct date much to the astonishment of the audience and the gentlemen concerned. It was certainly a most remarkable performance and if it is a sham it is a most clever one. Other and still more mysterious evidences were given by this remarkable woman such as telling the ... with the number of a check, the names of ... and ... the most astute. Another performance will be given at the New Market this evening and all who are curious as to the mysterious should attend. Reserved seats at Fronticks

CRUSHED TO DEATH

Martin Moss an Oiler on the Steamer Mexico Falls into the Crank Pit and is Instantly Killed

Between 4 and 5 o'clock yesterday morning, Coroner ... was notified by telephone that a man named Morris Moss had been killed on board the steamer Mexico at the foot of I street. When the accident occurred the Mexico had just started up her engine preparatory to casting off for her trip to Sitka. Moss was in the engine-room oiling bearing No 1 when all of a sudden he slipped and fell into the crank pit. The crank as it revolved struck him on the neck and must doubling him up and killing him instantly. The coroner held an inquest on the steamer before she left when the following evidence was submitted

John F. Jackson sworn: I am first assistant engineer of the steamship Mexico. At the time the accident occurred the engine was turning ... slow as it was just ... heating. Moss went to where ... he was ... his work. The engine ... he was stopped. ... the body ...

Capt H Crosby ... Mexico to visit his friend ... glitter, was in conversation with him standing at No. 1 journal. I felt somebody touch me slightly. I looked and moved to give him room. Saw him in the object of his duty. I turned to converse with the first assistant out of the ship when I felt something strike me on the left ankle. Mr Jackson exclaimed at the same moment "man in the crank pit." Instantly he jumped and stopped the engine before it had made a complete revolution. He called assistance and had Moss lifted from the pit. I supposed he was dead and found this to have been the case after he had been brought on deck.

The jury consisting of I. A. Thomson, James Strang, Patrick C. Smith, A. Noltke, John Trainor and J. H. Middleton returned a verdict of accidental death. Moss was about ... years of age and is said to have been a native of Hungary. He came here on the steamer from San Francisco and his friends, there if the address of any can be ascertained will be telegraphed to of the accident.

Several days ago THE OREGONIAN called attention to the fact that one Dave Soldt, of Albina who is ... lots for Mrs. A. ... in Prebstel's addition was very careless in allowing the giant powder cartridges used in the work to lie around loose. It was predicted at that time that a serious accident would be the result of such criminal carelessness. Saturday afternoon that prediction had a startling fulfillment. Albert, the 6 year old son of M O Beck, who was playing together with a number of youthful companions in the immediate vicinity of the premises named, picked up one of the cartridges. The little fellow and a number of the dangerous playthings and Master Beck being the youngest of the party, touched a match to the fuse of the one in his possession. An explosion followed, blowing off two fingers and the thumb of his right hand and otherwise lacerating his person. It is impossible to tell how he escaped instant death. Dr Fisher was immediately summoned and the little sufferer removed to one of the ... hospitals for treatment. Such criminal and reckless carelessness on the part of the contractor deserves the severest censure and punishment.

Colfax Gazette St Andrew's convent recently opened at Uniontown, and under the management of the sisters bids fair to become one of the promising educational institutions of Whitman county The building is a handsome three-story structure, completed and furnished throughout some weeks ago, at a cost of about $15,000 This sum was raised principally by the enterprising farmers of that vicinity While the institution is under the management of the Catholic church, its rules do not interfere with any religious belief.

Tacoma Ledger The sales of hops during the past weeks have been so heavy that it is estimated that less than 100 bales remain on this side of the mountains The freight rate is fully 50 per cent less than before the recent cut. Taking advantage of the present low tariff, Isaac Pincus has shipped altogether, since the reduction went into effect, 4000 bales, most of which have gone to New York The average prices have been 2 cents per pound for those of the 1884 season, while hops grown last year realized 6 cents In about ten days Mr Pincus will be ready to contract for this season's crop

This past winter, oystermen state, has been exceptionally favorable for oysters Shoalwater bay oysters are justly celebrated for their many superior qualities of taste, size and flavor Oystering, which heretofore flourished so extensively on the bay, is likely again to assume large proportions The art of cultivating them has tended to increase their size and quality, and in the coming season it is to be hoped that a regular oysterman's association may be formed, that all matters connected with the oyster interest may be forwarded and our oysters introduced even more generally than they have been in the past

McDonald being its president.

NORTHERN PACIFIC BRANCHES.

Cheney Sentinel While we cannot arrive at any definite conclusion as to what will be done, as to the construction of branch railroads from the main line of the Northern Pacific railroad the coming year, there seems to be a strong probability that a branch road will be constructed commencing at Marshall and running to Spangle, Waverly, Rockford and Rosalia, and to other points which may be established by the company previous to the coming election Marshall lies about half way between Spokane Falls and Cheney, therefore it will be of as much advantage to Cheney as to Spokane Falls for the present, and in the future all grain from this section will go west to Puget sound so we will look forward to the speedy construction of the branch road with much anxiety We are informed that the money has been raised for the completion of this branch road and is now in the bank of A. M Cannon of Spokane Falls We sincerely hope it will not share the same fate that the $50000 Ainsworth bond did.

Roseburg Plaindealer Chas Smith of Roberts' creek, was so fortunate as to secure the scalps of eight coyotes one day last week, for which the county paid him a bounty of $80 fur compensation to Mr Smith, and the lot were cheap to the county at the above price. A few days work of that pack would have destroyed thousands of dollars worth of taxable property.

The Kittitas Localizer says that a pretended horse buyer, who goes by the name of E A Gray and wears a seal skin overcoat, a tall man supposed to be 40 or 45 years old, has been circulating pretty freely through Yakima and Kittitas counties, purchasing horses and having them delivered on a certain day after he had left the country and the landlord of the Johnson house to mourn over an unpaid board bill of $11 He bought horses of several around Kittitas, and J D Dammon is one of his victims
